One of the men said he couldn's afford to lose the money, but thought it might appeal to some real sporting man who liked to take a venture. It was this man who informed the Secret Service men about three weeks ago that plans were afoot to counterfeit Venezuelan money. At their suggestion the man went again to Thompson and told him that a friend of his with whom he had been discussing the proposition was favorably impressed. A meeting was arranged.

Secret Service Agent Joseph E. Moser, posing as the proprietor of an uptown gambling bouse; was introduced to Thompson and later to Boynton as the man with the money to invest. Boynton explained his ideas, but Moser while expressing approval of the proposition declined to put up any money until a set of the dies to be used in counterfelting the coin was shown

Then Boynton, it is charged, went to the Keller Mechanical Engraving Company and made a contract to pay $2,500 for eight

On Tuesday Moser was notified by Thompson that a sample pair of dies was ready and that he could see them at his office at 42 Broadway yesterday morning. The Captain, he said, would also be on hand. In the meantime William J. Hynn, head of the Secret Service corps in the New York district, had taken Chief John L. Wilkie into his confidence. Wilkie thought the counterfeiting scheme of sufficient magnitude to notify the Venezuelan representatives in Washington and came on himself yesterday. With him came one of the attachés of the Venezuelan Legation.

Thompson was arrested at Bayport L. I., on Tuesday night, where he had gone to visit friends, and was brought to this city yesterday morning. Meanwhile several of the Secret Service men who had been detailed to watch Capt. Boynton at the Hotel St. George followed him from Brooklyn. Thompson and the other Secret Service men joined the party at 42 Broadway and when Chief Wilkie arrived Boynton was also arrested.

Chief Flynn and Secret Service Agent Klinke meanwhile had gone with a search warrant to the office of the Keller Mechanical Engraving Company. Neither of the Messrs Keller resisted the search, but handed over the finished set of dies, together with half a dozen "hubs" (as the finished piece from which the die is made is called), a reeding collar for milling the edges of the coins, and some other parts of the counterfeiting outfit. They accompanied the Secret Service men to court.

Capt. Boynton, when searched, had $5,400, which was returned to him after his bail had been furnished. Lawyer Joel M. Marx, of Marx & Muller, who was retained by both Boynton and Thompson, said that he thought the Government would have a difficult case in proving that his clients had any intent of counterfeiting either here or in Venezuela.

The Captain was visibly distressed at the seizure of the paraphernalia with which, as he said, money was to be made to push the movement against Castro. Greater still was his distress at the publication of t... fact that a revolution was in embryo.

"Look at me," said the Captain, who is a fine looking man of about 60, with white hair and mustache. "Do I look like a vulgar counterfeiter? I don't want to say anything at all about this matter, except that to no one have I made misrepresentations as to my motives in this cause. matter of having the dies made is nothing unusual. It is simply a 'war measure' to make money and the same thing is done in every South American revolution. It was done in Brazil when Dom Pedro was overthrown and the republic established. Even had this revolution not panned out Venezuela would have been so much richer from the circulation of the new money, as we had no intention to debase the coin.

"Until this morning I had every reason to believe that I was justified in acting for the Revolucion Regeneradora. No. 1 don't want to say that the signature to the letter appointing me special commissioner was forged. The thought is too horrible: but it haunts me more and more.

This statement was made in reply to a question as to whether the Captain had any suspicion that Castro and the Venezuelan authorities had framed up the revolution for the Captain's special benefit. By such a scheme not only would Boynton be removed from the country but he would get himself into trouble here. The Keller brothers declined to be interviewed in court. Walter Tanzer of Liebmann, Neumburg & Tanzer, their counsel, said that the Kellers took the order in the regular course of business and were thunderstruck when they were arrested. On the other hand, the Federal authorities say that though the Kellers do a very high grade of work $500 would be a reasonable price for the dies they agreed to make for Boynton. Instead of that they charged $3,500 and had already received $1,500 from Boynton on account.

Thompson, who said he had been an attorney for the past twenty years, has of late been engaged in the book business To the Gaekwar of Baroda, on that potentate's recent visit to this country, he is said to have sold $25,000 worth of editions de luxe. Like his friend, the Captain, he is a man of good appearance.

Whatever the fate of the infant revolution-and that seemed to depress Capt. Boynton most yesterday-the Secret Service men and Assistant United States District Attorney William Michael Byrne think they have a good case against the men. even if they did not know that the United States of America forbids preparations being made in its territory to counterfeit the money of a friendly power. No coins ere struck off the dies. Both Boynton and Thompson told Chief Wilkie that when the dies were finished they had intended to invest the rest of the $10,000 in silver bullion to be purchased from the United States Government.

Capt. Boynton at last reports was going to investigate his appointment as Comis-ionado Especial of the Revolucion Regeneradora and find out who signed the dooument. He doesn't think that the trick ascribed to President Castro would be beneath that gentleman, but he hates to think that he has been hoodwinked. At any rate, there will be no mint established just at present in the delta of the Orinoco.

LONDON, Aug. 22.-A London newspaper despatch from St. Petersburg says that the Car had a long conference yesterday with the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaiswitch in regard to the military dictatorship which the Grand Duke has advocated as the sole mer ns of reestablishing order.

It is understood that the Czar is much depressed because the power of the revolutionary element has apparently not been broken. There are strong influences at work, it is said, to make the Grand Duke Nicholas the military dictator, in the hope that he will be able to cope successfully with the situation.

Fifty children in one house were crushed, and three Catholic nuns who were attempting to rescue those in the ruins were killed by another shock, which brought the remainder of the building down. The wife of Admiral Montt is now reported to be safe but badly injured.

Congress is awaiting further information as to the extent of the disaster before acting on the proposition for raising a loan. Commercial interests are opposed to a scheme for the suspension of payments, claiming that the proposed issue of 80,000,000 pesos will save the situation.

Many rich families in Valparaiso have been completely ruined. One millionaire, Mr. Edwards, lost 40,000,000 pesos alone. Small islands have appeared in Valparaiso Bay, and incoming ships confirm the re-

BUT NOT UNTIL CHECKS FOR $1,900

ON UNION TRUST ARE CASHED. McCarthy, Chtef Crook, Traced Signatures

From Genuine Checks Furnished by Thomas J. Schand, Clerk in Bank of New York-Schaad Tenderloin Victim.

With the arrest on Tuesday night of Thomas McCarthy, alias Tom Brown, who gave his name also as James T. Murray. and the arrest of Thomas J. Schaad yesterday morning the police and the Pinkerton detectives believe that they have captured not only one of the cleverest bank forgers in the country but have checked one of the boldest attempts in recent years to swindle banks by means of the forgeries McCarthy made through the cooperation of Schaad and a confederate named Frederick Muntywiler, who has not yet been arrested. It is known that they drew five checks on the Union Trust Company. Three, amounting to $1,900 in all, went through and were cashed. One for $1,200 and one for $1,800 were detected.

McCarthy is a professional crook. Schaad s the son of a retired contractor and builder, Ferdinand Schaad of 108 East 101st street. and was used as a tool. He was bailed out by his father after a hearing in the Tombs police court yesterday morning. McCarthy s locked up in the Tombs. Muntywiler is a worthless young man who has been befriended by Schaad's father and who nas done time in Elmira Reformatory. He got young Schaad into the trouble. Schaad has turned State's evidence.

The forgery mill has been working since June, and so bold were McCarthy and The Grand Hotel was destroyed by the fire Muntywiler that they opened an office and yesterday the destruction of the huge at 45 Beaver street under the name of Schaad Brothers, and conducted their operations pleted. Unfortunately 500,000 bags of wheat from there. That they intended to carry on the business extensively, increasing the size of the amounts of the checks forged gradually, is not doubted, because they had BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 22.-There were five already adopted a rising scale in the checks remore at Valparaiso Monday night, but The detection of the men was one of the hardest puzzles the detectives have had n a long time.

The forgeries were committed through traceries of the signatures of genuine checks. Young Schaad, who is 23, had been employed since November 1 last as a sort of clerk and runner in the Bank of New York at Wall and William streets It was one of his duties to go to the Union Trust Company with checks for collection the trust company not being a member of the Clearing House. Before he presented checks he took them to 45 Bezver street where McCarthy made tracings of the signatures. Then he went to the trust company, made his collections, secured blank checks for McCarthy to sign and returned to his work again at the Bank of New York.

McCarthy got out the forged checks and had Muntywiler open an account in the name of Richard White with A. B. Leach & Co., bankers, of 149 Broadway, and in the name of W. J. Edwards with Ennis & Stoppani, brokers, in Broad street. What use he made of the accounts with these firms is not known, for all but $50 was drawn from Leach & Co.'s account, and about $500 is said to remain on the books of Ennis & Stoppani.

The downfall of young Schaad came through his boyhood acquaintance with of Nogales, Llai-Llai, Meleon and Zapallar Muntywiler. They grew up together report that there are still many unindenti-Muntywiler robbed the State Bank in Grand fied bodies in their morgues. At Canocheti 40 persons were killed; at Suillota, 170 street about three years ago and was sent to the Elmira Reformatory. He kept writing to Schaad, and when he got out on In the telephone office at Valparaiso 26 parole the young men resumed their intimacy. Soon Muntywiler was in trouble for a burglary. Schaad's father, who had hurrying to Valparaiso with cargoes of known the boy, settled the case, but Muntywiler had to go back to Elmira. The western cable to Valparaiso has been

When he served his term he came back and again made a chum of Schaad. He told Schaad how he had met in Elmira one of the cleverest forgers in the country whose name was McCarthy. He said that at the time of the San Francisco earthquake McCarthy had copied the signatures of facsimiles of checks printed in the newshad made $3,000. Muntywiler took Schaad into the white light district and got him going the pace. He saw the desirability of getting money if he was going to keep up that pace. McCarthy had a scheme whereby all hands could become flush easily and Schaad fell for it.

McCarthy says he is 23 years old, but he despatch dated 9 A. M., August 22, from their office in Lima, Peru, which reads as s nearer 30. He has been in prison for working the badger game and he recently Valparaiso almost annihilated. Fires served time in New Jersey on a larceny charge. His wife, who has an eight month old baby and has lived with him at 202 Wessel, Duval & Co. received the followng message yesterday from their Valpa-West Eighty-eighth street, it is said at the District Attorney's office, was arrested last week and held in $2,000 bail for "frisk-"Valparaiso about half destroyed, balance ing" a man of a gold watch. Whether damaged. Our office apparently quite safe. More than 2,000 killed and injured. Popu-McCarthy has ever done time for forgery

McCarthy has ever done time for forgery the police do not know.

McCarthy told Schaad to bring him the checks Schaad was taking to the Union Trust Company and let him trace the signatures. Schaad then could go about his business, and McCarthy and Muntywiler would do the rest and whack up. McCarthy selected first a check signed by Esther J. Ogden. He thought a woman would have an inactive account and the forgery would not be detected for some time. He made out a check for $200 and tried it on. Muntywiler, it is asserted, deposited it with Ennis & Stoppani. The check was paid, and in a few days a second check signed by the Consul at Valparaiso any contributions wiler, it is asserted, deposited it with Ennis & Stoppani. The check was paid, and in a few days a second check signed by the same name, for $500, went through all right.

Then a check signed by Davis Barnes, a Wall street broker, was selected for a bolder game. McCarthy forged one with that signature for $1,200. That was deposited by Muntywiler with Leach & Co. This house deals largely in municipal bonds. There came no order for bonds, and in a few days all the money was drawn out except $30. This aroused the suspicion of Leach & Co. and they communicated with the Pinkerton agency. Meantime, a fourth check, for $1,200, signed W. H. Boyd, had been presented by the gang, exactly through what brokerage or banking house the police have not revealed.

The Union Trust people were fortunate enough to detect the Boyd forgery, although it was done so cleverly that Mr. Boyd from the signature alone was unable to pronounce it a forgery. He so declared it because he had given no such check. With this forgery in mind, the Union Trust people were on the lookout for more.

The case was put in the hands of the Pinkertons through the American Bankers' Association. A few days later a large jewelry house uptown called up the Union Trust Company to ask if a certain check for $1,800, which had been tendered in payment for jewelry, was good. It bore the indorsement: "Pay to the order of Ennis & Stoppani." It looked as if it were a lost check and was being used by the finder. Whose that the people of this country might wish to make for the relief of the unfortunate sufferers in the amicted cities and towns of Chile. Contributions sent to the association will be placed at the disposal of the sufferers through Wessel, Duval & Co., a member of which firm, G. L. Duval, is treasurer of the association and is now on his way to the city of Valparaiso. Checks should be made payable to the order, of Gustav H. The Union Trust officials told the jewelry firm to send the check down. The signature was pronounced perfect, but the officials of the trust company said they would keep the check because of its peculiar indorsement and investigate. They told the iswalry firm not to sail any iswalry on it. the jewelry firm not to sell any jewelry on it. A quick investigation showed that it was a forgery.

Then began the work of catching the rascals. The bankers saw that they were confronted by a band of forgers as expert as any that had been abroad in many a day. as any that had been abroad in many a day.

the detectives traced every step of their liquidation. Every man who handled them was practically under suspicion.

It was soon decided that the signatures were done by some system of tracing and exact reproduction. The only opportunity for a criminal to get hold of the originals was when the checks were being taken to the Union Trust Company for collection. This put the suspicion on Schäad. He had come to the Bank of New York highly recommended by an uptown bank, whose officials said they could find no fault with him except that he was sickly and remained away from work too often. There had been a good deal of illness in the Schaad family, and only about a year ago a sister of the youth died. About August 1 he was absent from the bank two days, and his mother came down and said the work was too hard for the boy and he would have to quit it. It is asserted that young Schaad about this time made a mysterious trip to Wisconsin. He came back in a few days, however, and the Pinkertons resumed their watch on him.

It was soon found that he was leading a lively life in the Tenderloin region, and that he was associating with McCarthy and Muntywiler. The detectives decided to arrest McCarthy, and yesterday morning, when young Schaad came down town, presumably to go to the office of the group, he was arrested at Broadway and Rector street.

Both Schaad and McCarthy were taken to the Tombs court. Schaad sent for his father, who was broken hearted over his disgrace. He advised his son to tell all, and the young man decided to do so. He spent a good part of the afternoon closeted with Assistant District Attorney Lockwood, who had charge of the case in the police court. He was held in $3,000 ball, which was furnished by his father. McCarthy was held in $5,000 ball, although Mr. Lockwood asked for $6,000. He could not secure a bondsman and was locked up.

PHYSICIAN A SUICIDE.

Dr. Holmes Walks in Front of an Express Train and Knecks Down. NEW BRUNSWICK, Aug. 22 .- Dr. John

Holmes, aged 65 years, a retired physician of Cranbury, walked in front of the Philadelphia express one mile west of Jamesburg last night and was instantly killed. The engine tossed him fifty feet, breaking his neck. Dr. Holmes had been at Jamesburg all day in company with Abram Voorhees of Cranbury, who brought him with him in order to keep an eye on the doctor who during the past month had made several attempts at self-destruction. He slipped away from Mr. Voorhees and started his home, five miles distant, on foot, and when he arrived at a railroad crossing evidently made up his mind to put himself out of the way.

The crew of the train saw him deliberately walk in the path of the running locomotive and kneel down. The suicide was the author of "Several Years Ago" and was a contributor to the press.

ASBURY PARK, Aug. 22.-There was a dog show here to-day for the first time and the resort guests found it a pleasing novelty. A bevy of girls left the beach before the morning dip and promenaded the short distance to the auditorium, where the show was held, in their bathing suits.

BRACKETT MAKES A MOVE. Begins Action to Set Aside the Recent Reapportionment Law.

Union Sq. North - 29 E 17 th St.

SARATOGA, Aug. 22.-William L. Sherrill, well known Republican of Washington county and an intimate friend of Senator Edgar T. Brackett of Saratoga, to-day began an action in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of this judicial department to declare void the apportionment of Senate districts made by the last Legislature, so far as it relates to the Thirty-second district, on account of the disparity in population between it and other districts in population between it and other districts. The Thirty-second district includes the counties of Clinton, Essex and Washington. At the recent Senate convention Wallace Knapp was nominated by the Republicans to represent the new district. Under the old reapportionment Washington county was in the district represented by Senator Erackett.

The other two counties in the district were Saratoga and Schenectady. It is an open secret, so Senator Brackett's friends say, that Gov. Higgins and his friends cut out Washington county from Brackett's con-stituency so as to make it sure that Brackett would not secure a nomination.

In the action brought by Mr. Sherrill ex-Senator Elon R. Brown of Watertown is the petitioner's counsel. Mr. Brown was one of the insurgent Senators who followed Brackett's lead in the last two sessions of the Legislative.

CURE BY THE CUTICURA REMEDIES

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black splotches all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of annoyance and suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of my town. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. They treated me for the same for the length of one me for the same for the length of one year, but the treatment did me no good.

"Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. Shortly afterwards, my husband in reading a copy of a weekly New York paper saw an advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies. He purchased the entire outfit, and after using the contents of the first bottle of Cuticura Resolvent in connection with the Cuticura Scan in connection with the Cuticura Scap and Cintment, the breaking out entirely stopped. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every splotch was entirely gone and the affected parts were left as clear as ever. I have not felt a symp-
